I. Scene. Es ist Nacht. Links im Vordergrunde ein grosser Baldachin mit Estrade. Ausblick in den Park, dessen Alleen im Mondenschein schimmern.

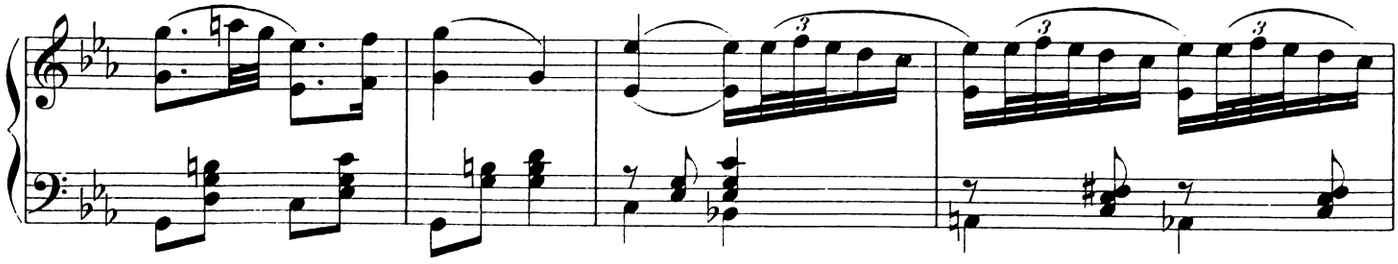

Der König in schwarzer Kleidung auf einer Lagerstatt halb liegend, in Melancholie versunken. Um ihn lagern die Geister der Schwermut. Der Genius der Melancholie unmittelbar hinter dem

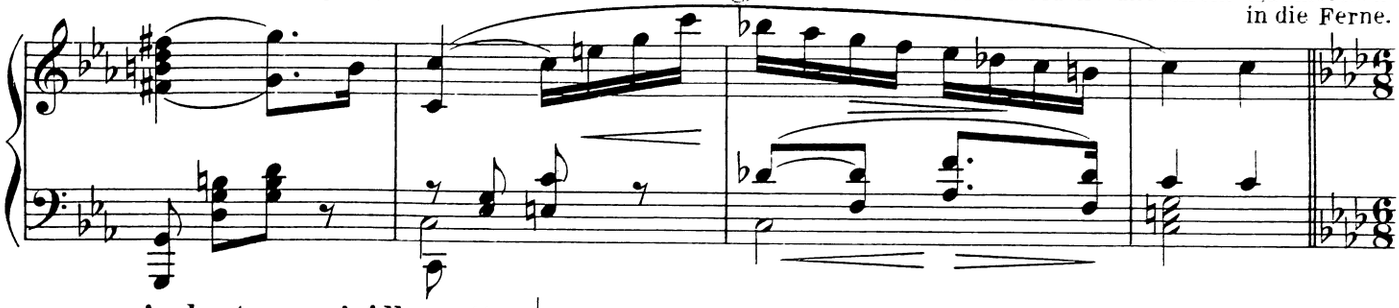

König, seinen Schleier über das Haupt des Träumenden ausspannend. Etwas weiter unten ein silberhaariger Greis (die Vergangenheit), der die Harfe schlägt. Blaues Licht beleuchtet das Bild.

Der Harfner spielt, still lauscht der König, denkt entschwundenen Glücks und blickt träumerisch in die Ferne.

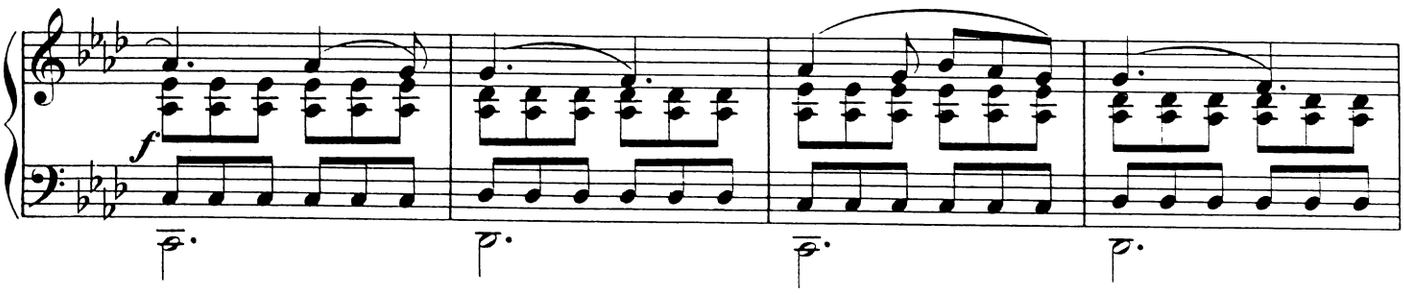

Andante quasi Allegretto. ♩. = 76.
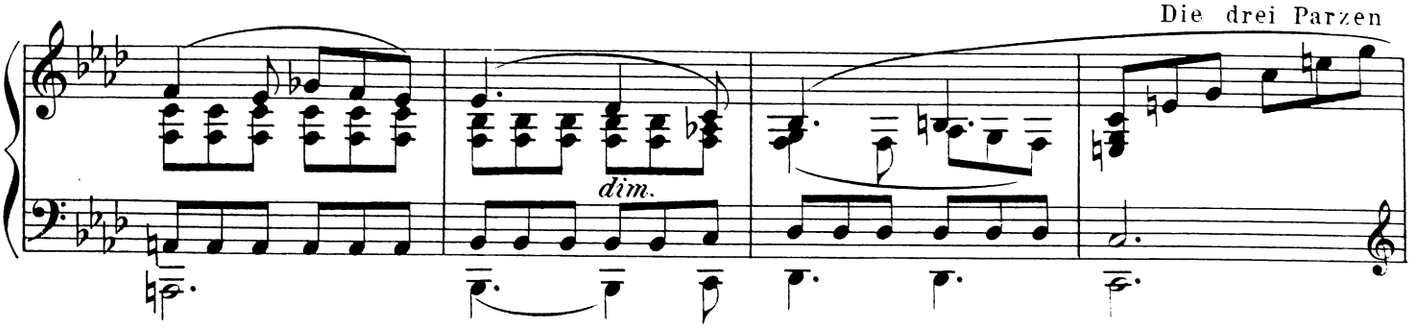

Dann erhebt er sich, von seiner Erinnerung übermannt und breitet sehnsuchtsvoll die Arme aus.

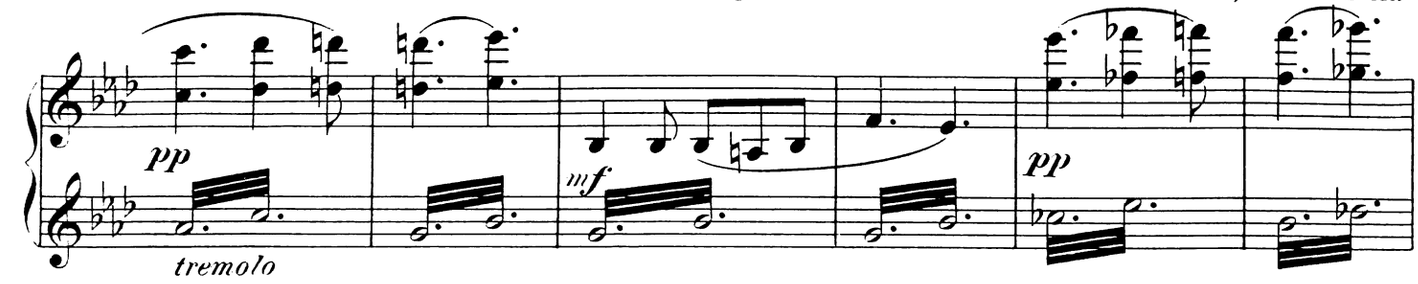

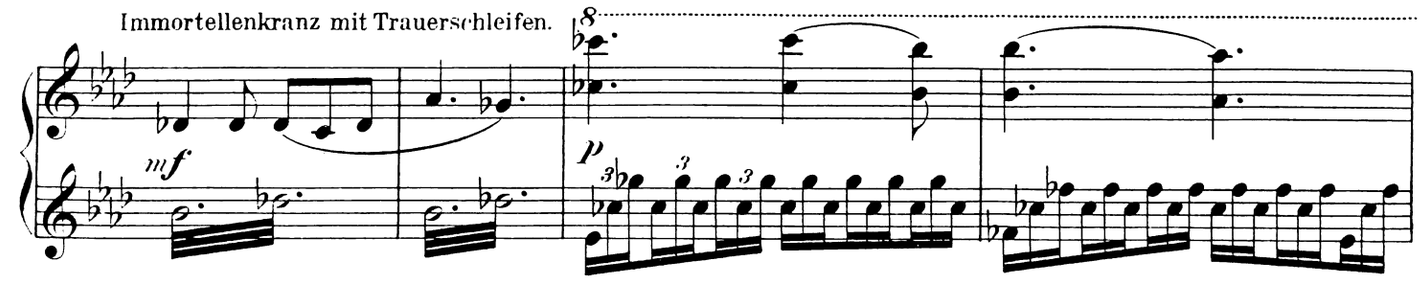

Die drei Parzen

werden sichtbar; zu den Füssen der dritten liegt ein schönes Mädchen im Todesschlafe, daneben ein Immortellenkranz mit Trauerschleifen.

Bild verschwindet.

II. Scene.

Allegro moderato. ♩ = 138.
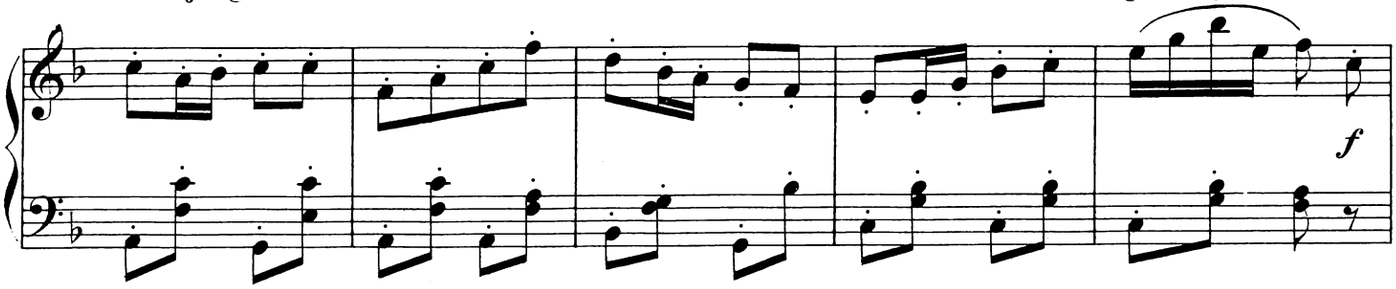

Es wird Morgen.

Im Parke zeigen sich Gärtnerburschen mit Arbeitszeug

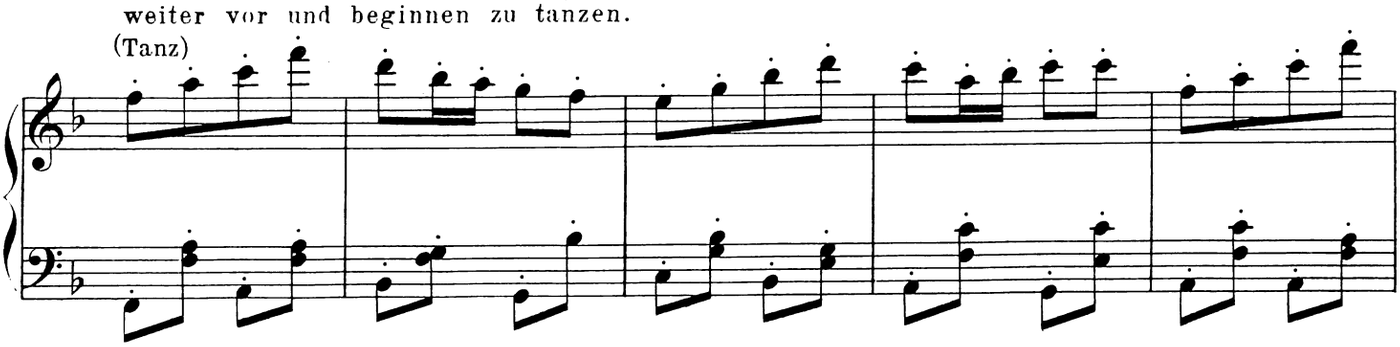

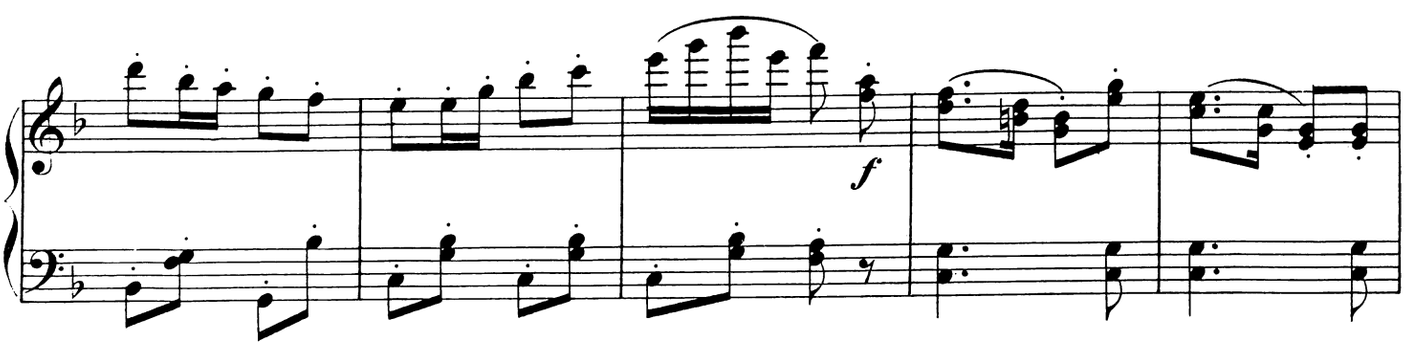

und junge Mädchen mit Blumen. Sie blicken verstohlen nach dem König, wagen sich dann weiter vor und beginnen zu tanzen.

Abgang der Tanzenden. Zugleich versammelt sich der Hofstaat. Die

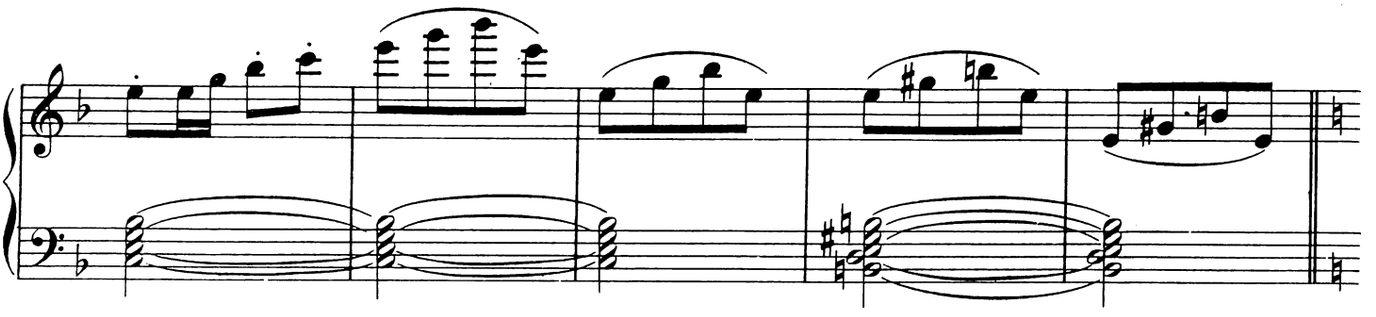

Hofherren schäkern mit den abtanzenden Gärtnerinnen.

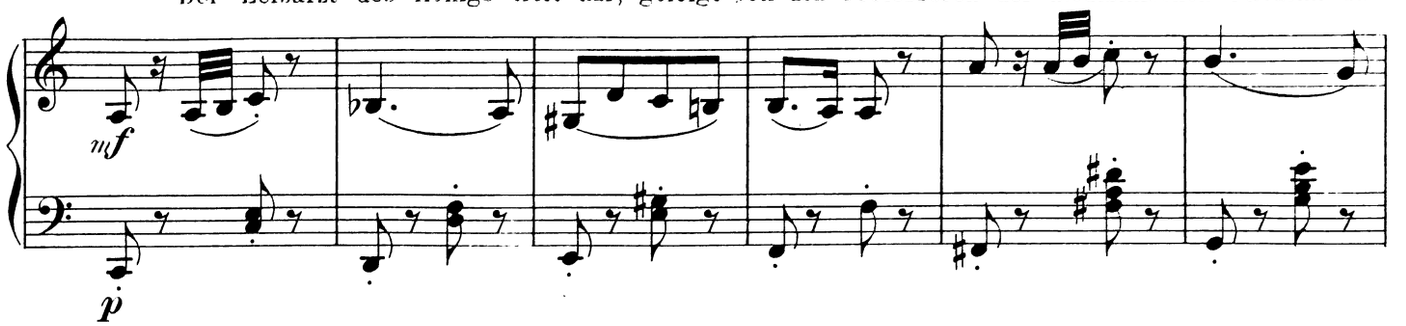

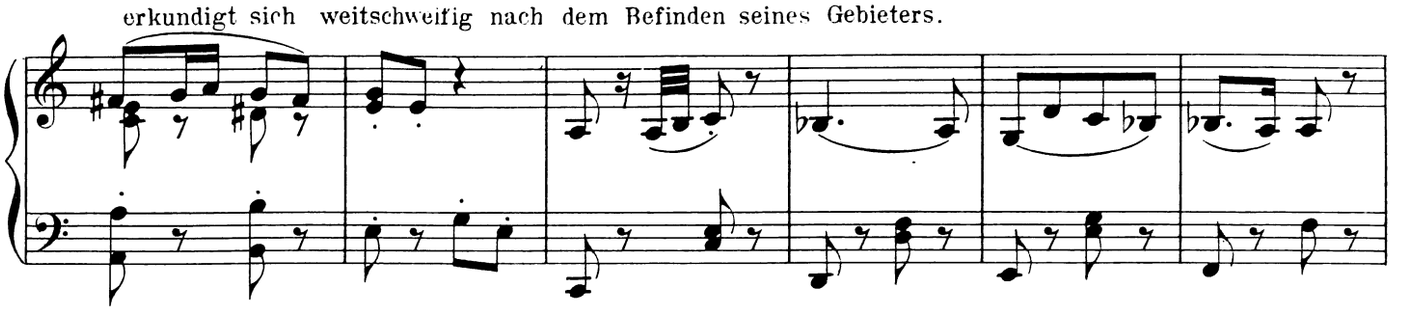

3. Scene.

Allegro moderato. (♩ = 120.)

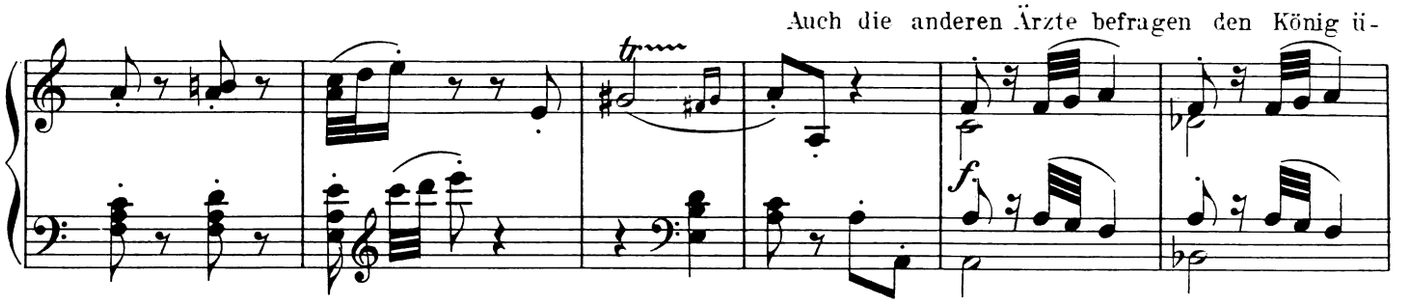

Der Leibarzt des Königs tritt auf, gefolgt von den Professoren der medizinischen Facultät und erkundigt sich weitschweifig nach dem Befinden seines Gebieters.

Auch die anderen Ärzte befragen den König über sein Befinden; dieser antwortet kaum und weist eine grosse Medicinflasche unwillig zurück.

bietet ihm, die köstlichsten Weine zu credenzen. Der Kellermeister ab.

Der Obersthofmeister giebt ein Zeichen.

4. Scene.
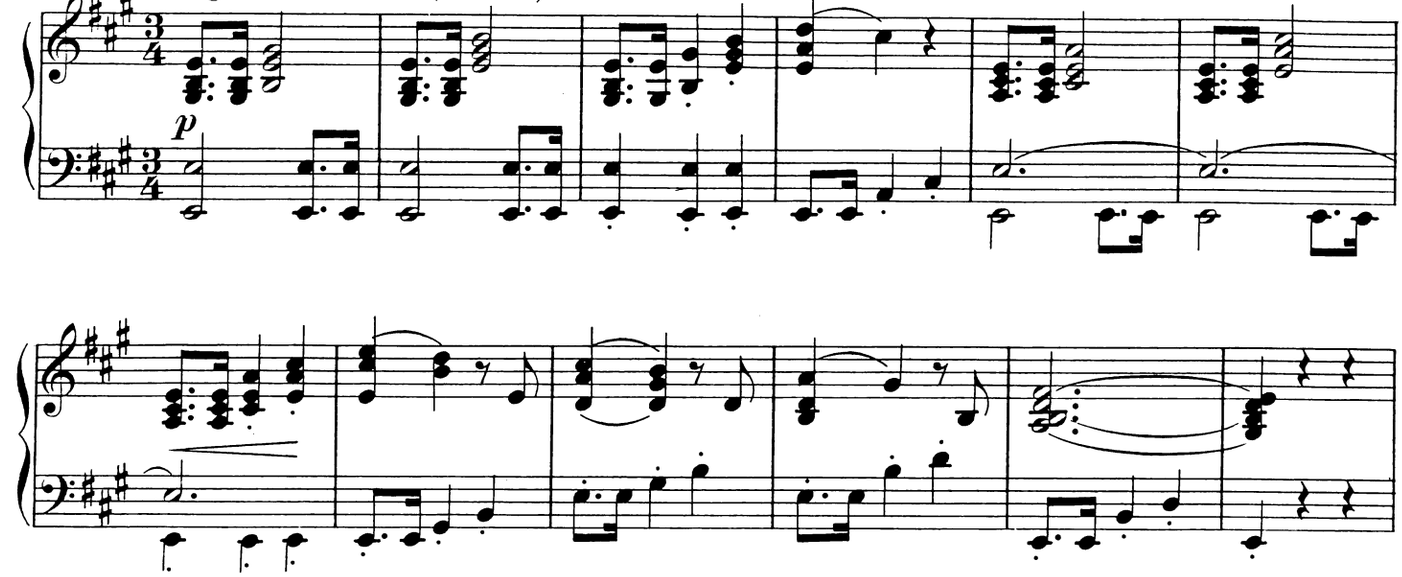

La revue des vins.

Zu jedem Weine erscheint ein lebendes Bild. Die Figuren beleben sich und führen die Tänze aus. So oft ein Tanz endigt, credenzt ein Page dem Königeden Pocal. Dieser winkt ab oder nippt kaum.
